Help make Vanderbilt a more inclusive campus for everyone!

A more accessible campus benefits all students, staff, faculty and visitors regardless of disability, gender, race or age.

You can help the Mapping Access Project create an accessibility map of Vanderbilt campus buildings and paths! No prior experience needed. Snacks and lunch are provided.

How it works: Drop by throughout the day to attend exciting presentations and performances, learn more about how features of the built environment can better support marginalized campus communities, and join a building survey team. Surveys take 30-45 minutes.

Accessibility Map-a-Thon

April 8, 2016 • 9a-4p
Curb Center, 1801 Edgehill Ave

For more information or accessibility requests related to the event, contact Professor Aimi Hamraie at aimi.hamraie@vanderbilt.edu.

Schedule of Events

9a: Welcome
10a: Blindness, Accessibility, and Wayfinding
11a: History of Disability Activism and Accessibility at Vanderbilt
12p: Lunch; Disability Arts and Film Showcase
2p: Student Experiences of Accessibility on Campus
3p: Access as a Feminist Issue
3:45p: Community Conversation and Next Steps

Sponsored by the Mapping Access Project, Library Dean’s Fellowship, the Curb Center for Art, Enterprise, and Public Policy, the Center for Medicine, Health, and Society, the Program in Women’s and Gender Studies, the Office of LGBTQI Life, and the Office of Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action, and Disability Services.